While the horder situation is regarded as serious, officials believe that in great part it is the affair of the State of Texas. Most of the disturbances, it is stated, have occurred at interior points, and there is no evilence that they are of Mexican origin, some of the outbreaks are attributed to political quarrels.

Reports to the War Department are it variance with press dispatches from the Texas border. Secretary Garrison said General Funston has requested no additional troops for borier patrol. The Secretary declared that a large part of the disturbances in the Brownsville region were local in character, and had no international significance.

It is incumbent on the State of fexas to protect its citizens from atlacks originating within its borders, it is stated. The Federal troops in fexas are empowered to act only against invasion or violations of the leutrality laws.
